Objective: CMPI is dedicated to the serious study of paranormal phenomena in order to better understand the world beyond our own. Through the course of our activities, we will work to help clients understand and deal with the paranormal elements that may be around them. We collect scientific data to help further the paranormal research field and assist other groups to educate the public to the reality of the paranormal.

Who Is CMPI? Central Maine Paranormal Investigations was founded by Stacey Farrington, Lori Black, October Knerr and James Wetherell on June 6, 2006. They formed CMPI because the group they were previously working with disbanded and they still wanted to continue on their path of researching the paranormal. CMPI Team Members are passionate and dedicated in their search of the paranormal as well as helping their clients and the general public in understanding the paranormal world. CMPI is funded through donations and its members; CMPI does not charge for their investigative services.
